Manager's Commentary

Global markets were dominated in October by the vicious soap opera that passes for a democratic process in the US, and Vietnam was not excluded from the fallout any more than it will be if the reality TV show host gets anywhere near the big red button. Onshore, the VNI was weaker than it appears if one excludes the somewhat surprising performance of Faros Construction (ROS) which debuted on 1 September with a reference price of VND10,500. The stock rose by 3.25 times in September and from there by a further 2.5 times in October, an 11.93 points positive contribution to an index which fell by 9.93 points in the latter month. At its current market price of VND96,200 the company has a market capitalisation of roughly US$1.86 billion (43 times 2015 revenue) and is the 9th largest stock listed on the southern bourse. It is, apparently, a construction company. We assume that the market surveillance department (if we have one) is looking very closely at the stock and that their report is imminent. We suspect that if the creators of the various Vietnam ETFs do not fall for this trick that it may very well end in tears. Not good for the market.
